SPREADS

---

Pates, hummus, jams and other spreads of the most varied flavors.

Testing Note:

A pate with a strong personality. When tasting it for the first time, a source of daring flavors is noticed, reminiscent of the greenness of that olive when is just starting to ripe. The spicy touches that remind you of a walk through an Andalusian countryside stand out. It is original, with a very good aftertaste, very balanced. If it reminds us of anything, it is the Mediterranean.

Serving suggestion:

With its daring flavour, it can either go on a toast accompanying a vermouth, cured cheeses, or combined with any pasta which we want to give an original touch to.

EAN: 8436586790455				Weight:	801,16 Kg

Testing Note:

It is powerful, ripe in flavours, persistent in the mouth, glyceride and creamy. It is very reminiscent of what the aroma of olives is, the flavour of these at their optimum point of ripening. It has a nice color and a nice soft texture. It is a paté that can play many different roles. It is very well made, creamy and organoleptically pleasant.

Serving suggestion:

It goes well with ripe fruits, such as black plums, figs and pomegranates, dried fruits and nuts. It would add a great touch to a pizza, a panini, a toast, or any canapé or toast that had a fresh, creamy or soft cheese, not a cured or dry cheese. It would be ideal as a complement to vegetables (asparagus, artichokes, aubergines) or to use as a base for a sauce for these or as a finishing touch. It could be used to complete a tapenade or with anchovies, which give it a salty touch in contrast with the ripening of the pate.

Testing Note

There is a balance of flavours between tomato and olive that leaves a powerful aftertaste in the mouth. This paté has a creamy texture and is persistent in the aftertaste with a pleasant sourness. It is very glyceride and also dominant, high in umami. It is very pleasant at a first taste, and makes you want more. With a very Mediterranean touch, it is tremendously combinable, or can be eaten alone on a toast.

Serving suggestion:

This pate goes well with any white fish. It can be put on some flakes of cod, or as a touch of a sauce, as it would help bring out interesting flavours to the fish. It could be added to a pasta sauce, giving it a touch of sophisticated flavour. In its main function as a spread, it would accompany well any cured or dry cheese.

Testing Note:

It has a very homemade, consistent and rustic texture. It is an honest product, not pretentious. It is olives and artichokes with their flavors, both very well defined, but also well assembled. Great as a spread, it can elegantly highlight the combinations we make on our toast.

Serving suggestion:

This spread accompanies any fish or cured cheese, blue or with a strong personality, ideal with sobrasada (Majorcan sausage), as a touch for a sauce or a salad vinaigrette. Spread on bread and accompanying sausages would be a success.

Testing notes:

The bright pistachio tone that it presents shows the excellent raw material used in its preparation and attracts us to discover this delicious pate with a balanced and well-defined flavor that does not present the characteristic bitterness of asparagus and leaves a phenolic, fresh and persistent aftertaste.

Serving suggestion:

With cleansing properties and vitamins of group B, A, C and E. Ideal in combination with nuts, crudités, cheeses and ham; as well as in the preparation of sauces such as pesto, vinaigrettes, and vegetable lasagna. It is an excellent filling for boiled eggs and pasta.
